

Graphic Organizer for Active Reading

I Never Saw a Moor

Emily Dickinson

Pupil's Edition page 522

Imagining Things Unseen

In "I Never Saw a Moor," Emily Dickinson imagines a place she's never actually seen. She is so certain that the place exists that she feels as if she has been there. Fill in the travel itinerary below for a place you've never been before but dream of visiting. How would you travel? What would you see and do when you reached your destination?

Travel itinerary for:
Destination:
Means of travel:
Climate / Terrain:
Sights, activities, etc.:

1. Identify and describe words from the itinerary above that are essential to helping someone else imagine your chosen destination.

2. Now create a poem about your destination using these words.

Copyright © by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. All rights reserved.